Key Terms for Disqualification in GCSE and GCE Examinations and Coursework (2009)

Along with all examining bodies under JCQ jurisdiction, CCEA takes very seriously the issue of offensive terms within examination scripts and coursework material.

Candidates using the terms outlined in this document out of context will be subject to disqualification from the CCEA examination in which the term is used.

The Council emphasises to examiners the importance of the term 'out of context'. It is important that candidates should not be penalised for the use of listed offensive terms if used in a relevant situation.

One such example would be the use of the term 'fuck', which features heavily in D. H. Lawrence's novel 'Lady Chatterley's Lover'.

It is up to the individual examiner to determine whether an offensive term has been used in or out of context.
